Help when revising- WJEC

Remember that there are great websites and resources available to assist you in revising. The WJEC website³ is a great place to start. There are notes prepared by experts on every aspect of your course.

And here's another website ⁴from WJEC where you can check your exam dates and get advice on how to organize and prepare for the exam period.

Bitesize

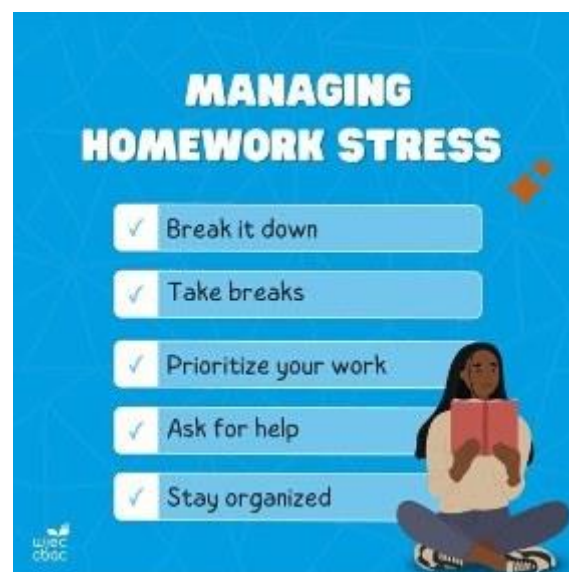

Another extremely useful website is Bitesize: Click on this link⁵ and you will find activities to guide you through the external exam papers.

WJEC for students

If you feel under pressure it is important that you share your feelings. A number of organisations offer help in managing stress. Follow @wjecforstudents on instagram for advice similar to the ones below:

#LoveReading

Remember that reading will be a KEY important skill for you in the coming months. As well as being an essential skill when answering exam questions, reading can also be beneficial for you when relaxing.

Jess Fishlock has some great advice when it comes to reading:

“I DON’T THINK I’VE EVER READ A BOOK AND NOT LEARNT SOMETHING, EVEN IF THAT’S JUST THE CAPITAL CITY OF A COUNTRY.”

“READING AND BOOKS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN A STEADY PART OF MY LIFE.”

Improve your reading skills

Need help with your reading skills?

These are useful websites for you when preparing and improving your Welsh reading skills.

Choosing books

Need advice on choosing books to read?

Go to the bilingual blog, Sonamlyfra⁶. You will find great reviews of children's books written by children. Or why not upload your own review of a book you read?

Have you listened to the Welsh Book Council's latest 'Caru darllen'⁷ (Love Reading) podcast? There are some great recommendations for Welsh novels here!
